

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Chapter

	PROLOGUE	iv
	PART I	1
1	Argument	2
	Section 1. What Is Argument?
	Section 2. Characteristics of an Argument: Number of Arguers
	Section 3. Characteristics of the Argument: Rules or Etiquette Governing the Argument
	Section 4. Characteristics of the Argument: Rhetoric and the Importance of the Audience
	Section 5. Tactical Assumptions of an Argument: The University of Discourse
	Section 6. Tactical Assumptions of an Argument: The Burden of Proof
	Section 7. Tactical Assumptions of an Argument: Assumptions or “For argument’s sake . . .”
	Section 8. Strategic Assumptions of an Argument: Truth
	Section 9. The Genesis and Development of an Argument
	Section 10. The Tactics of an Argument
2	Snapshots of the History of Argument.....	38
	Section 11. Plan of This Chapter
	Section 12. The Sophists
	Section 13. Socrates and Plato
	Section 14. Aristotle
	Section 15. Opinion
	Section 16. Dialectics
	Section 17. Words and Things
	Section 18. Peirastic Arguments and Universes of Discourse
	Section 19. Rhetoric
3	Argument in the Contemporary Scene.....	68
	Section 20. Plan of This Chapter
	Section 21. The Classical Theories of Truth
	Section 22. The Pragmatic Theory of Truth
	Section 23. Scientific Method
	Section 24. The 1960s
	Section 25. Contemporary Attacks on the Scientific Method
	Section 26. The New Rhetoric and Argumentation
	Section 27. A Rhetorical Analysis by Steve Fuller
	PART II	108
	Section 28. Plan of Part II: The Foundations of the Theory of Argument
4	Language	111
	Section 29. Plan of This Chapter
	Section 30. Language
	Section 31. Differences among Languages
	Section 33. What Is Language?
	Section 34. What Is Easy to Say in a Language?
	Section 35: Can Any Statement in One Language Be Translated into Any Other Language?
	Section 36. Translation of Words

4 (cont)	Section 37. Translation of Pieces of Language Section 38. What Cannot Be Said? Section 39. Does Language Have a Major Influence on Thought? Section 40. The Miracles-Don't-Happen Rebuttal Section 41. Arguments with Postmodernists
5	Words..... Section 42. Plan of This Chapter Section 43. Words and Arguments Section 44. Words and Concepts Section 45. Wittgenstein's Predecessors Section 46. Definition Section 47. Stipulative Definition Section 48. Antonyms Section 49. Opposites Section 50. Words That Can Create Problems of Definition Section 51. Facts, Concepts, Values Section 52. Hallett's "Linguistic Depth Perception" Section 53. When Are Arguments Only about Words? Section 54. Defining and Nondefining Traits Section 55. Realistic Expectations for Definitions Section 56. Word Magic	147
6	Prolegomenon to a Chapter on Logic Section 57. Plan of This Chapter Section 58. Characteristics of a Lost Argument Section 59. Intuitive Reason Section 60. The Argument of Laughter Section 61. Laughter Section 62. Wit	208
7	Logic Section 63. Plan of This Chapter Section 64. Logic Section 65. Syllogistic Logic Section 66. Modern (Formal, Symbolic) Logic Section 67. Conversational Statements and Logical Propositions Section 68. The Square of Opposition Section 69. Immediate Inference Section 70. The Strategy of Arguments Section 71. Fallacies Section 72. Dilemmas Section 73. The Retort Section 74. Escaping from a Syllogism	222
	PART III Section 75. Plan of Part III	278
8	The Explanation of Facts Section 76. Plan of This Chapter. Section 77. Facts Section 78. Summary of Tactics for Dealing with Facts Section 79. Simple Facts Section 80. Complex Facts	283

8 (cont)	Section 81. A Famous Arguer: Samuel Johnson Section 82. Antitheses and Reversals Section 83. Reversals in Arguments and Repartee
9	Concepts.....	317
	Section 84. Plan of This Chapter
	Section 85. Questions Involving Concepts
	Section 86. Scales of Concepts
	Section 87. Particulars and Concepts
	Section 88. Billig's Reversals on Particulars and Categories
	Section 89. The Assignment of a Particular to a Category
	Section 90. Similarity
	Section 91. Some Difficulties in Assigning Particulars to Categories
	Section 92. Particulars and the Fuzzy Boundaries of General Terms
	Section 93. The Use of Particulars to Challenge Extensions of General Terms
	Section 94. Defining and Nondefining Characteristics of Categories
	Section 95. The Special Case
	Section 96. Generalization of a Particular Section 97. Another Look at Concepts
	Section 98. The Basic Idea: A Helpful Analogy
	Section 99. The Dispositional Theory of Concepts
	Section 100. An Example: "Pornography"
	Section 101. Differing Concepts for the Same General Word
	Section 102. Analogies
10	Questions of Value.....	371
	Section 103. Plan of This Chapter
	Section 104. Ethical Questions and Values
	Section 105. The Simple Ethical Decisions
	Section 106. Are There Ultimate Moral Principles?
	Section 107. Arguments about Moral Values
	Section 108. Conflicts of Values
	Section 109. Aesthetic Arguments
	Section 110. Some Invalid Arguments about Values
	Section 111. Slippery Slope Arguments
	Section 112. Setting up a Moral System
	Section 113. Some Complex Ethical Decision Problems
11	Avoiding Tactical Traps in Arguments.....	402
	Section 114. Plan of This Chapter
	Section 115. Immediate Inference
	Section 116. Contradiction
	Section 117. Definitions
	Section 118. The Miracles-Don't-Happen Rebuttal
	Section 119. Slippery Slope Arguments
	Section 120. Politically Correct Arguments
	Section 121. Dilemmas
	Section 122. Making Distinctions
	Section 123. What Will Be Accepted as Proof?
	EPILOGUE.....	436

Endnotes.....	443
Bibliography	486
Glossary	497
Index by Chapter and Section	498
General Index.....	522